Buffalo National River in the springtime exhibits a brilliant display of colors. Over one hundred different species of wildflowers and flowering trees reveal showy flowers from February to June. Many other plants bloom with not-so-obvious smaller flowers. This checklist highlights the more common showy spring flowers.

The park trails offer some of the best places for viewing spring flowers. The 95,730-acre park contains open farm lands, oak-hickory forests, ponds and streams, abandoned homesites, tall bluffs and box canyons. The varied landscape provides excellent habitat for an assorted plant life to be enjoyed by all.

- W = woodland areas
- B = bluff and/or rocky areas
- S = near streams
- M = moist areas
- V = variety of habitats
- G = glade and/or dry areas
- F = old fields and /or open areas
